Mater Castissima

The most beautiful eyes that ever were
 Were never seen, save in the shade
 Of modesty's veil, lowered and obscure
 Like day's first light-the eyes of heaven's Maid!

By hers cast down, our searching eyes were raised.
 Though hidden from our gaze, their soft allure
 Transformed the world and left all hearts emblazed
 With sacred luminance more pure than pure.

How these have sweetly castigated me!
 Attracting even as they hold away,
 Enticing by a light I cannot see,
 And ravishing my heavy heart of clay,

That now, my guarded eyes and looks make known
 How I, like her, belong to Him alone.
